ABSTRACT

Firstly, since the beginning of life there have been more than 7,100 languages what decorates the world. Unfortunately, due to several reasons some of them are less widely used than others. It can be due to globalization, world wars and all over unity of countries via study, business. Despite this, the world languages are temporary. That’s why, they are changed after a period such as Russian language. The study gained insight into the question that how much people are likely to learn a second language. Especially, which is assumed to be the future world language. And, which is worth spending time. The study findings suggest that in order to develop carrier in later life we should have knowledge about this.

Key words: language, prediction, career development, research, francophone, speaker, self-development, learner, IELTS.

The present study experimentally investigated the usage of languages in rates in various countries and predictions which can dominate over others and concentration on the second languages. The predictions are proposed relying on the revolution of a country and its speakers in the whole world . The underlying reason for this study is urge students to learn another languages what is necessary for their carrier development. (Career development is the process of choosing a carrier, improving skills and advancing a long career path). According to a British council member John Knagg, there are 1,5 billion English learners worldwide. Interestingly, as a study by investment bank Naxitis, reported by forbes.com, French could be most – spoken language in the world. 120 million students over the world are being taught to French by 500,000 teachers. Hence, the numbers between French and English speakers is significantly different what may cause to be late for self-development. Thereby, it can be noted that on "A different language is a different vision of life." Federico Fellini

"One language sets you in a corridor for life. Two languages open every door along the way." Frank Smith

"You can never understand one language until you understand at least two."
Geoffrey Willans

In this research we thank for the students of Samarkand state institute of foreign languages (Uzbekistan), Sarvinoz Jurakulova who is one of the teachers in Samarkand university of management, not to mention, google resources. Initially, we gained the background information from google sites. So, the council of European union presidency think about French to be the first and most common language in the world. However, as mentioned above the amount of French learners is considerably small rather than English. Lingua language center data indicated that Spanish owns as more as twice speakers than French. Nevertheless, French is a language that reflects both rich and cultural and historical heritage of France and also that of the worldwide francophone. (Francophone - a loosely, united group of nations in which French is a first, official or culturally significant language). It is a language of international diplomacy, a global business language and a top internet language which points growing importance of French. , French-speaking areas account for almost 20 percent of world import and export trade, making it an advantageous language to speak for international business.

In order to clarify students' attention to languages we attempted to question some students in Samarkand state institute of foreign languages. Taking into consideration all opinions, we realized that the main focus on the first language namely English, but they do not ignore their second learning languages, but there were negative ideas too. So, in Uzbekistan there are a lot of languages at schools and in higher educational establishments. They are: French, Arabic, Turkish, Japanese, Chinese and German. At the moment some of are paying equal attention to both languages in order to work bilingually or to improve their career. They said: - “if I am limited with one language I will limit my career and respect too” so in short, the more language you speak, the more dreams you achieve.

Lastly, it is worth noting that every republic is teaching another languages. But the problem is lack of attention. What can cause this? - From my perspective of view, not everybody has enough notion how important the second language. Therefore, all authorities are responsible for performing an action to rise the notion of population. For example: in Uzbekistan to achieve masters degree in several spheres you have to have IELTS certificate at least with C1 level. If they demand students to be well-educated step by step they can do the task. This is e foreign language cannot be a key of success. possible for all countries. To add, there can be more persuasive advertisements, especially on social media what can be highly effective. To give an example: If you want to study aboard English can be enough but for competitions among your peers you must be multilingual. According to survey data, about 23% students prioritized learning a foreign language chose to study in a country where English is primary language. Besides this, the overseas students always attempt to learn the languages:

1. English
2. Spanish
3. Swedish
4. German
5. Italian
6. French

According to your field you choose your own language. However, it should be kept in mind that with highest rate French is useful for working internationally.
